

My Clever and Nice Mum

Last Sunday afternoon, my little brother, Mum and I stayed at home. I was in the living room and was deciding what to draw, a family picture or a house. My little brother, Leo, took my green colour pencil quietly and sneaked away.

Suddenly, I discovered my green colour pencil disappeared! At that time, I heard something annoying behind me. Out of the corner of my eye, Leo drew some lines on the wall! I shouted at Leo, 'No! Don't draw on the wall!' However, it was too late, he had already drawn on the wall.

I was terrified to see what he had done and tried to rub it off. Suddenly, Mum came and saw what I was doing. Surprisingly, she did not punish me. She said, 'No worries! I have an idea!'

Mum said, 'I know both of you like drawing, we can turn this wall into a drawing corner!' Leo and I were surprised and said, 'What a smart idea!' We felt so great to have a drawing corner at home. Drawing was interesting and fun, but we had to draw in the right place.
