

5C (20) Wong Chit, Karson

A Horrible Accident

Last week, Ryan had an accident. That morning, when the alarm clock was ringing, he did not realise it at all! When he woke up, it was already 8:00 a.m. When he checked his phone, he was in shock. He quickly got changed and went to school but the lift was out of order. So, he quickly went down the stairs and he almost fell down the stairs.

When he was running across the pedestrian crossing, suddenly, the pedestrian lights started flashing! A taxi hit him. His friend Karson called an ambulance to help him. The ambulance went there immediately and brought him to the hospital.

When he got to the hospital, he told the doctors that he did not feel so good. Suddenly, his heart stopped so the doctors rushed to the room. They used the automated external defibrillator to try to restore his heart rhythm. Luckily, it worked, and he learnt that he should never run when the pedestrian lights are flashing.